A Prayer for Blue Delaney

follows the outback adventures of orphaned Colm, who runs away from the cruelties of Bindoon Boys' Home and goes in search of a family of his own. Set in the 1950s. Set in the 1950s.

A Prayer for Blue Delaney Chapter 1: The first chapter is about a boy named Colm, who is very sad because he has to live in an orphanage. There is also another boy in the orphanage named Dibs. Colm was only five years old when his mother brought him to the orphanage.

A Prayer for Blue Delaney. Colm is on the run, determined to escape from the cruelties of Bindoon Boys' Home. He strikes up an unexpected friendship with Billy Dare and his dog Rusty, and together they travel from the goldfields of Kalgoorlie to the rugged north.

Colm is an - orphan of Empire - sent from the UK after World War II to the infamous Bindoon Boy's Home in the WA bush. He escapes and teams up with old Billy Dare and his dog, Rusty. Together they evade the authorities and go adventuring through western and central Australia, along the dingo fence, looking for work. Ages 11+.

A Prayer for Blue Delaney is the third of four inter-linked novels, the Children of the Wind quartet, each of which can be read as a stand-alone story. PLOT SUMMARY 'Don't worry,' said Bill. 'You can hide out here until you get your strength back. That is, if you don't mind an old man, a dog and a few ghosts for company.' It is the 1950s.

A Prayer for Blue Delaney. Written by Kirsty Murray Review by Elizabeth Hawksley Rachel Beggs. 1950s Australia. Colm McCabe is one of thousands of children torn from their families in the U.K. and sent 'for their own good' to Australia. They thought they'd be adopted but, instead, they were sent to brutal orphanages.
