Crossroads to Islam: The Origins of the Arab Religion and the Arab State is a book by archaeologist Yehuda D. Nevo and researcher Judith Koren. The book presents a radical theory of the origins and development of the Islamic state and religion based on archeological, epigraphical and historiographical research.

Crossroads to Islam. The Origins of the Arab Religion and the Arab State. Amherst, N.Y.: Prometheus Books, 2003. 462 pp. $32. Nevo's work falls squarely into the "Hagarist" tradition that radically reinterprets early Islamic history. For the most part, scholars of early Islam—even Patricia Crone and Michael Cook, authors of Hagarism [1]—have avoided the full implications of this interpretation because of the almost complete lack of non-Muslim sources and the difficulties in working with ...

Crossroads to Islam—Wikipedia

This new view turns on its head the traditional history of the rise of Islam, which claims that Islam began with Muhammad in Mecca and Medina around 622; then spread throughout Arabia under his charismatic leadership; and finally, after Muhammad's death (632), inspired his followers to conquer widespread territories both in the East and West.

~~Crossroads to Islam: The Origins of the Arab Region and ...~~

To wit, Crossroads to Islam argues that the rise of Islam as we currently understand it never happened: Muhammad did not exist as a historical person, there were no early Arab conquests, and Islam itself did not begin to take shape until Arab rulers essentially invented it starting in the 690s — some seven decades after the traditional account has Muhammad unifying Arabia under Islam's banner.

Whereas most works on this subject derive their view of the history of this period from the Muslim literature, Crossroads to Islam also examines important types of evidence hitherto neglected: the literature of the local (Christian) population, archaeological excavations, numismatics, and especially rock inscriptions. These analyses lay the foundation for a radical view of the development of ...

More broadly Crossroads to Islam suffers to some extent from a lack of cited scholarship after the early 1990s, which is a pity. One area, however, where this reviewer disagrees with Nevo and Koren concerns their theory, following John Wansbrough, of the Qur'an as the product of a redaction during the `Abbasid period (eighth-ninth centuries).
