"D.O.M." is a book that takes you outside of any relatable frame of reference and forces you to accept the dishes on their own terms. In that way, it is transporting. You will browse through pages of otherworldly Brazilian landscapes and portraits and then we're confronted with something like an oyster topped with a shiny lozenge of sorbet made from cupuacu (an ancestor of the cocoa bean).

D.O.M.: Rediscovering Brazilian Ingredients: Alex Atala ...
Currently elected the 9th best restaurant in the world by S. Pellegrino "World's 50 Best Restaurants", D.O.M. is a unique restaurant without claiming to be eloquent. On the contrary, its message is syntactic and poignant: to step out the comfort zone and propose a new gastronomic experience, rescuing the most authentic flavours of Brazilian cuisine according to a contemporary gaze.
