This book is the most comprehensive reference ever written for individuals interested in law enforcement selection. The chapters contain meta-analyses (statistical reviews of the literature) investigating the validity of methods used to predict police performance. These methods include education requirements, cognitive ability, background variables (e.g., military experience, arrest record, discipline problems at work), personality inventories, interest inventories, physical agility tests, assessment centers, and interviews. The first chapter in the book is a short primer on meta-analysis that informs the reader about the purpose of meta-analysis and how to interpret the meta-analysis tables contained in the book. Chapter 2 describes the methods used to conduct the meta-analyses for this project. Chapters 3-11 list the meta-analysis results for the various predictors of police performance. Chapter 12 describes a meta-analysis of the relationships among criteria (e.g., performance ratings, discipline problems, commendations), Chapter 13 describes a meta-analysis of the relationships among selection methods, and Chapter 14 describes a meta-analysis of the relationship between the various criteria and sex, race, age, and tenure. Chapter 15 summarizes the previous chapters and identifies future research needs.

The Post Entry-Level Law Enforcement Test Battery, commonly known as PELLET-B, is an aptitude test designed to assess if the candidate has the requisite skills to work effectively as a peace officer within the US state of California. 'Peace officer' is a term used in reference to any person with statutory powers to enforce the law, and this is inclusive of police officers, sheriffs, state troopers, and constables. Scoring highly in the PELLET-B exam is viewed by several agencies as well as academies as indication the person is prepared for a career in law enforcement. Although aspiring peace officers would like to be considered able to build a career in this field, there is also a law - Commission Regulation 1951 - stipulating that every peace officer must be competent in reading and writing to the level necessary for proper performance of the duties of a peace officer, and that level is to be evaluated through an exam that is professionally created. This guide is designed to help students achieve the highest score possible through numerous test questions. A detailed explanation of answers is also provided so that students can learn from any mistakes.
