John and Yoko spent a lot of time in the late '60s and early '70s working to promote peace. In 1969, they put up billboards in major cities around the world that said, "War is over! (If you want it)." Two years later this slogan became the basis for this song when Lennon decided to make a Christmas record with an anti-war message.

Lennon took the sole songwriter credit on this track, but later said that his wife, Yoko Ono, should have been credited as well. On December 6, 1980, two days before he was murdered, Lennon did a radio interview with Andy Peebles for the BBC where he explained: "That should be credited as a Lennon/Ono song because a lot of the lyric and the concept came from Yoko.

Miser this is a great thread that you created ! Thank you bro!! I loved John Lennon (and the Beatles) and when he was murdered on Dec. 8th 1980, I was so very heart broken! Everyone was heart broken!! (When George Harrison died of cancer on Nov. 29th 2001, that was yet another heartbreak!) John Lennon's hair at times did look like he was experiencing some type of hairloss.
