We are the ragtime infantry! - Move Him Into The Sun

The war the Infantry knew is a superb mosaic of war. It bears out Dunn's statement in his Preface: 'War is neither a glitter of highlights nor a slough of baseness, it calls forth the best that is in the human spirit; its worst aspects are found far from the battle-line.'

The infantry was the workhorse of the military, not only faced with battling the enemy but also often asked to do physical labor at the front lines transporting the food, clothing, weapons and medicine needed to win the war. They experienced the war as no one else did.
